

WILL INVESTIGATE POLICE CRUELTY

Passaic Strikers, Citing Oppression, Get Habeas Corpus

Following The GRAPHIC'S exposure to the effect that "confessions" had been pried out of innocent textile strikers in New Jersey by brutal and inhuman beatings and threats of the police at Passaic, Paterson, and other cities, Supreme Court Justice Black at Jersey City has issued writs of habeas corpus for seven men now held under heavy bail.

Several investigations may be started today, and public officials responsible for any brutality face dismissal.

Nearly all the strikers taken into the custody of the police report that they were often cruelly beaten and even knocked down in an attempt to force a confession that they were responsible for bomb-throwing, though they asserted they had taken no part whatsoever in outrages.

Symington Divorce Held Void in N. Y.

BALTIMORE, MD., Sept. 29.—Certified copies of the decree signed by Judge Walter W. Preston at Belair, Monday, divorcing Thomas H. Symington from Mrs. Ida May Symington, as well as testimony taken in Judge Preston's court, were being prepared today for forwarding to the New York court, where a suit for divorce is pending.

Max D. Steuer, counsel for Mrs. Symington in New York, has declared, according to dispatches, that the Maryland decision will have no effect on Mrs. Symington's counter suit when it is called, October 4. Symington's counsel, however, says a New York decision can have no effect on the Maryland decree.

Bootleggers Evade Law as 'Druggists'

FRENCH LICK, IND., Sept. 29 (By U. P.).—Prohibition regulations of the Federal government were under fire today at the convention of the National Wholesale Druggists' Association.

The government's ruling designating as legal distributors of alcohol any wholesale druggist who had an investment of $25,000 in the business opened the way for illicit disposal of alcohol on a large scale, Lee Hutchinson of Grand Rapids said.

He asserted scores of bootleggers entered the wholesale drug business so that they might legally obtain supplies for the illicit liquor traffic.

Dr. George Mord, medical examiner, and the police started an investigation today of the death last night of Caroline Rockaw, 60, whose body was discovered shortly before midnight in a gutter near her Sleight Avenue home, Tottenville, Staten Island.

half hours of argument on the part of her lawyers, that they must abandon such a line of attack.

Implicit Faith in Slain Man

"When Edward and I stood before the altar," Mrs. Hall is reported to have said, "we trusted each other. Throughout the years that followed I trusted him.

"I will not believe that he violated that trust. If poor Mrs. Mills thought he loved her she was mistaken. She had made up a relation from her imagination. He only sought to make her come to her senses, just as he would advise any other poor deluded soul.

"As for his loving still other women, I know he did not."

Then came Mrs. Hall's orders that her lawyers and their detectives drop all attempts to prove her husband's unfaithfulness to her.

Love Never Faltered

If Frances Stevens killed her husband—and the state of New Jersey is confident that she was at faithfulness. Such reports have been on every tongue in New Brunswick and the surrounding countryside since the bodies of Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills were found under the old crabapple tree, September 16, 1922. This was two days after the murders.

Question Trooper-Deserter

While attorneys for the defense labor to bend Mrs. Hall to their wishes, prosecution detectives work to clean up minor details further substantiating their claims of guilt against the four accused. They claim, however, that they could go to trial tomorrow.

Inspector John J. Underwood and Capt. Harry Walsh have questioned Henry L. Dickman, deserter from the New Jersey State Troopers, who was active in the first investigation of the murders.

Dickman was returned to this city from San Francisco on the transport St. Mihiel yesterday. He was taken to Castle William on Governors Island. Dickman is reported to have said he was paid off in the first investigation by friends of the Hall family.

Seek New Eyewitness

Inspector Underwood today is hopeful of questioning a man whom for several weeks the prosecution has designated as "No. 3."

No. 3 is reported to have told a police informant, who is a private detective, that he saw the slayings of Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills. He is said to have named all four of the indicted as having been at the scene.

Both the informant and No. 3, who has been hunted in The Bronx, are reported to have once been connected with the Walter R. Burnley private detective agency of 261 West 125th St., Manhattan.

least an accessory to the crime of four years ago—she never once faltered in her love for him. If anything, her love drove her to her desperate action.

Even the clever, merciless Simpson will admit this. His star witness, Mrs. Jane Gibson, gives testimony to it.

And the woman whose hair has turned white under the strain of her prosecution still clings to the love of the girl at the altar. She will not hear him accused of unfaithfulness to her, even if it means her own freedom and that of her kinsmen.

Freedom at Stake

Despite her protests, however, her many legal defenders, headed by Timothy N. Pfeiffer of New York, and former Attorney General Robert H. McCarter of Newark, will fight to impress upon the clergyman's widow the need for to sacrifice love for freedom.

Distasteful as has been their task, they have recounted to her the rumors of her husband's un-

One lone salesman to serve ten eager customers...

NO matter how hard he works, he can't wait on all of them at once—there are bound to be some who slip away to go and do their buying elsewhere.

Only one telephone to take care of as many eager customers? One lone telephone is as impotent against ten customers who want to buy at once, as the harassed employee in the picture.

Don't let orders slip away because there aren't enough telephone salesmen in your office, or because people are told that "the line is busy" every time they call.

Our Commercial Service Bureau will be glad to advise with you about additional telephone facilities. Telephone, call or write to our nearest business office and the matter will be given prompt attention.
